What factors influenced results

Since October 2023, U.S. Treasury rates have mostly remained near their highest levels of the last fifteen years. Corporate bond market valuations appeared inflated as corporate credit spreads narrowed, and investors have been drawn in with anticipation that prices will rally once interest rates begin to fall.

Most of the fund's sectors added positive returns to the portfolio, with holdings in government-related bonds, emerging markets debt and REITs being particularly additive. Likewise, holdings in banking, municipal and securitized bonds saw returns surpassing those of the overall portfolio.

Conversely, investments in U.S. Treasury bonds detracted from absolute returns due to a modest increase in long-term yields during the period. Duration positioning, along with exposure to interest rate and credit derivatives, also negatively impacted the fund's overall results.

Effective July 24, 2024, the fund's primary benchmark changed from the Bloomberg U.S. Corporate Investment Grade Index (the "Previous Primary Benchmark") to the Bloomberg U.S. Aggregate Index, a broad-based index that represents the overall securities markets, as required by the SEC. The Previous Primary Benchmark provides a means to compare the fund's results to a benchmark that the investment adviser believes is more representative of the fund's investment universe. There is no change in the fund's investment strategies as a result of the benchmark change.
